

Elisa V. Mariscal

Elisa Mariscal is Managing Director with Global Economics Group, a firm specializing in independent and rigorous economic analysis in legal, regulatory and policy matters throughout the world.

Until 2013 she was President and Editor-in-Chief of Competition Policy International (CPI), which publishes a bi-annual academic journal, bi-monthly magazine, and its daily newsletter that covers antitrust and competition policy issues around the world.

Prior to this, Dr. Mariscal headed the General Directorate for Unilateral Conduct Investigations at the Federal Competition Commission (CFC) of Mexico. In this role, she led one of the largest unilateral conduct investigations for the CFC into exclusive dealings and fidelity rebates programs. During her seven-year tenure at the CFC, she was advisor to the Chairman, Deputy General Director of Economic Studies and Deputy General Director of International Affairs. Prior to the CFC she worked in economic consulting in the U.S. looking into antitrust, regulation and intellectual property issues in the U.S., Canada and Latin America.

Dr. Mariscal has authored various papers including several studies on behalf of the CFC for the OECD's Competition Committee and the Regional Center for Competition in Latin America, which groups 14 Latin American antitrust agencies. Among the representative sectors in which she has worked are telecommunications, broadcasting, supermarkets and airports.

Since 2006 she has been a lecturer of Economics and Law at CIDE (Centro de Investigación y Docencia Económicas), teaching courses in microeconomics, competition policy and regulation to both economists and lawyers at undergraduate and graduate levels.

Dr. Mariscal received her bachelors degree with honors from ITAM (Instituto Tecnológico Autónomo de México), as well as a Ph.D. and M.A. in economics from the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA).
