

Society of Plastics Engineers UH Chapter – Speaker Series

Title: “Publishing for Impact: A guide to peer review and tips & tricks to make your paper stand out”

Date: Feb 06, 2024

Time: 1:00-2:00pm

Venue: Midtown (Room 262), Student Center South

Abstract:

The purpose of this presentation is to give an overview of scientific publishing and provide an introduction to the Royal Society of Chemistry. It will cover the role of a scientific publisher, how to write a paper, what is needed for submission, insight into the peer-review process, open access and publishing ethics.

Biography:

Jeremy joined the Royal Society of Chemistry in July 2014 as a Publishing Editor, starting in the journals: Physical Chemistry Chemical Physics and Nanoscale, before becoming the Deputy Editor for Chemical Science in 2018. At the beginning of 2022 Jeremy became the Executive Editor for Materials Advances and Nanoscale Advances, where he leads on the development of the journals, liaises with the Editorial Boards and oversees the production of articles. He is also the Executive Editor of recently launched journals RSC Applied Interfaces and RSC Applied Polymers. Prior to joining the organization, he completed a PhD at the University of Bath, UK and worked as a Post-Doctoral Research Assistant at Trinity College Dublin, Ireland. His research focused on the use of computational techniques for modelling reactions on surfaces and understanding the defect chemistry of oxide materials.
